PLOT TO KIDNAP HEIRESS TO MILLIONS

UNCOVERED IN CHICAGO TAPPED WIRE DISCLOSES

The Plans of a Notorious Gunman In the Shadow of the Gallows Engineered the Scheme Frustrated—Jean Schweppe Aged 11, and Her Brother John Aged 9, Were the Victims—When Conspiracy Was Bared Riflemen Were Called Out To Guard Aristocratic Neighborhood.

Henry "Midget" Fernekes, notorious gunman recently removed from the Cook county jail, where he awaited a sentence of death, to Joliet penitentiary, engineered an unsuccessful plot to kidnap an 11 year old girl heiress to a $15,000,000 estate and hold her for a cash ransom of $1,000,000, the authorities revealed Sunday night at Chicago.

The intended victim was Jean Schweppe, daughter of Charles H. Schweppe, wealthy bond broker and granddaughter of John G. Shedd, late president of Marshall Field and company. The girl and a younger brother are heirs to part of the $15,000,000 Shedd estate.

"Midget," wanted in New York for murder and in other states for bank robberies, was convicted of murder and held in jail for months awaiting execution. Recently he was granted a new trial by the state supreme court and removed to serve part of a 10 year sentence for robbery.

The Schweppe home in the exclusive North Shore suburb of Lake Forest has been under the vigilant guard of two dozen detectives for a week. Sunday night eight men armed with shotguns and rifles patrolled the estate and mansion, and even maintained a vigilant watch on the water front, fearing an attempt might be made to kidnap the child by approach from Lake Michigan.

The plot to kidnap the little heiress was believed to have been hatched in the Cook county jail while Fernekes was an inmate.

Fernekes, unable to assume active command of the kidnaping, used as his right-hand man a Chicago gunman, once confined in murderers' row with him, authorities said.

He entrusted to this man the details of the amazing conspiracy.

A Chicago detective accidentally uncovered the kidnaping plot. Mindful of the Midget's many attempts to escape or cause trouble, detectives had been watching his friends and one of them overheard two women talking of the kidnaping. From their conversation the detective learned the details of the plot.

The exclusive Lake Forest suburb Sunday was a city under seige as fear of the kidnapers spread to other socially prominent residents of the town of vast estates. At nightfall women and children were off the streets.

Fernekes is one of the few strong-arm crooks ever to live up to the police description of "a master mind." Born in Chicago, he started in 1916, when 18 years old, as a holdup man, later branching out into bank robbery. The police have attributed 14 bank robberies in and around Chicago to Fernekes, along with the slaying of two Pennsylvania state troopers and a slaying in New York.

He was caught in April, 1925, while poring over chemistry books in a library, later explaining that he wanted to experiment with bombs to blow safes. He was tried and convicted of the murder of the treasurer of a building and loan association in a $12,000 holdup and sentenced to be hanged.

Last summer, while awaiting sentence of death, he tried to dynamite the jail, and later two or three attempts to escape were uncovered by jail guards, one of them almost at the time when it appeared the "Midget" might be successful. A few days ago he was granted a new trial on the murder charge and was taken to Joliet to serve some of the 10-year sentence for bank robbery before he is tried again.

TO WED FRENCHMAN

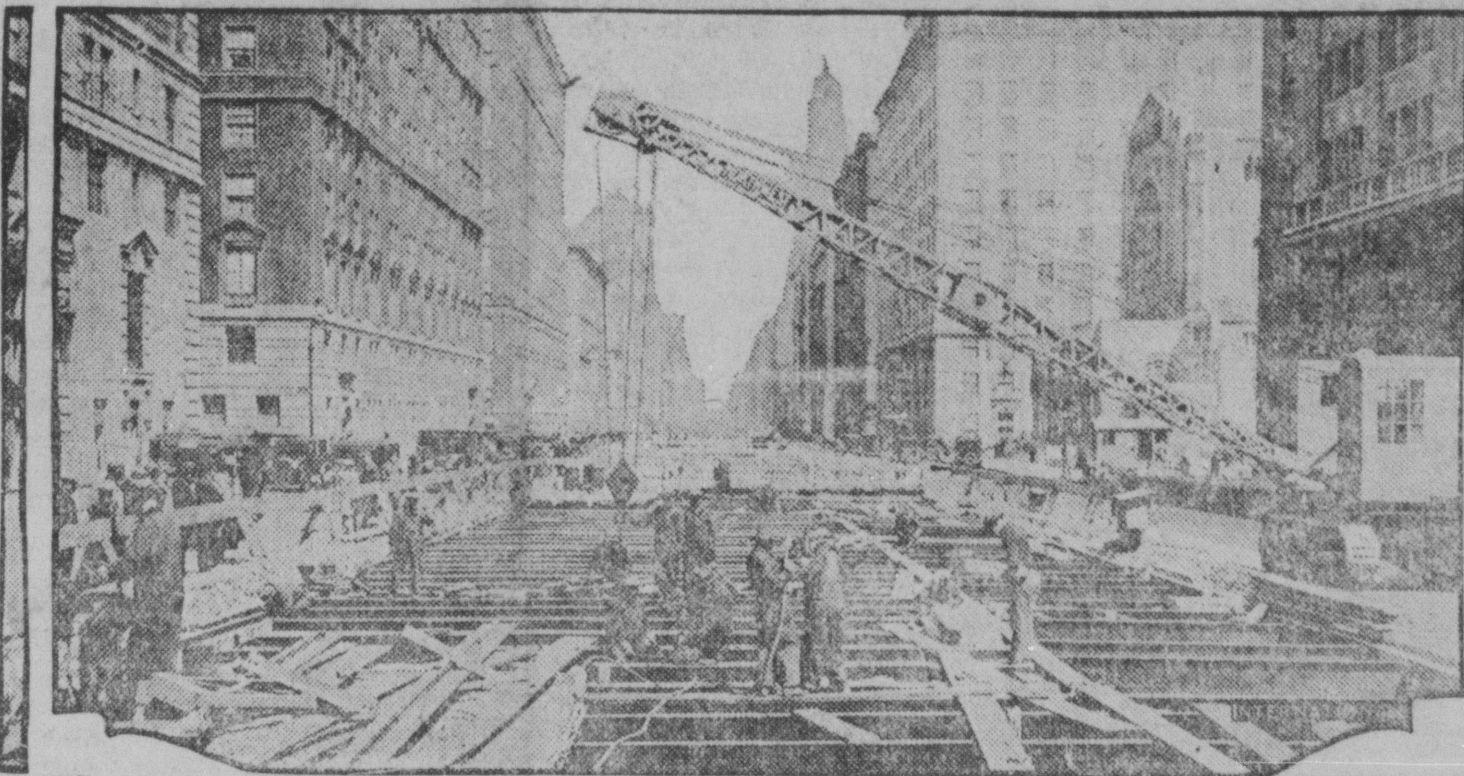

Miss Helen Cassin Carusi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Carusi and a popular member of the younger set in the national capital, whose engagement to Commandant Emmanuel Lombard, assistant military attache of the French embassy, has been announced. The wedding will probably take place this summer.

OFFICERS FOR ELECTIONS ARE REAPPOINTED

Dr. G. S. Corne, Republican, and H. W. Plum, Democrat, both of Circleville were appointed deputy state supervisors of elections for Pickaway county, upon recommendation of the county Republican executive and Democratic committees respectively by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, in his official capacity as state supervisor and inspector of elections.

The appointments became effective May 1, for a period of two years. Compensation of board members is determined by the number of voting precincts in the county where the appointment is made.

Taking the "Park" Out of Park Avenue

To meet the ever-increasing traffic of Park avenue, New York, the lanes on each side of the thoroughfare are being removed, making the entire width of the street available for vehicles.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Dayton—Two thousand electric refrigeration units will be produced each working day by the recently enlarged plants of the Frigidaire Corporation, it was announced today.

Hamilton — Donald Butts, 4, was killed, and his mother and sister, Dorothy, 6, were injured when their auto was struck by a train at West Middletown. The crossing was congested by persons watching a circus unload. Authorities exonerated the conductor and engineer of the train.

Warren — Charles Steinmetz, indicted on two counts for the holdup and robbery of the Cortland savings bank in March on trial before Judge Carter today on the indictment returned in connection with the second holdup. He plead not guilty when arraigned on the indictment.

Bellaire—Ella Doty, 26, was under arrest today believed to be the mysterious "blonde" whom police have hunted in the murder of Angelo Barbinni, whose body was found in a barrel on the rubbish pile of a Bellaire dump.

The body was nailed into the barrel with spikes, several of which penetrated the skull. Friends of the dead man have maintained the last person he was seen with was a blonde woman. It is said the couple were in Wheeling prior to the murder.

Toledo — Six persons were dead and several were recovering today from injuries received in auto accidents in and near Toledo over the weekend.

Mary Louise Brady, 17, Fremont, was killed when the car in which she was a passenger overturned. Other occupants of the car who were injured are; Elaine Muchmore, 17, Fremont, serious; Ross Irons and Cleo Soutnef, both 19, of Clyde, cuts and bruises.

PARK REFORESTED.
The state park surrounding Old Man's Cave in Hocking county, which is one thousand acres in extent, has been practically reforested. Nearly seventy-five thousand pine trees have been planted in the past three weeks. The work was finished last Saturday.

A TERRIFIC COLLISION AT MACKAY FORD

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. James Valentine of Ashville Were Seriously Injured.

Mr. and Mrs. James Valentine, of Ashville, were seriously injured Sunday at noon in an automobile collision at the intersection of Mackay Ford road and the Columbus pike.

They were returning home from a journey to Magnetic Springs, where they had taken their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Will Valentine, for treatment. They were riding in a Ford car, and as they neared the Columbus pike, they stopped to let two southbound cars go by before crossing the pike and as they neared the center of the Columbus pike they were struck by a southbound Jordan car, driven by a woman, which was going at high speed so it is claimed. The Valentine car was hit squarely in the center and doubled up like a fan. Mrs. Valentine went thru the windshield and was nearly scalped. Her husband was found beneath the car and it is feared he was injured internally. His right wrist was broken and he was badly bruised about the body.

Mrs. Valentine was Miss Priscilla Katharine Cromley before her marriage. Reports from the home Monday morning are not encouraging. Mr. Valentine expectorated blood during the night. Dr. Hosler and Dr. Shift are their attending physicians.

Edward and Israel Valentine, of this city, went to Ashville today to see their injured brother and sister-in-law.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

THE SICK
Mrs. Flora Gorton, of East Union street, is ill of the shingles.

KILLED BY AUTO

Word has been received here of the death in Portland, Washington, of Mrs. Ella Robley, who was killed in that city Tuesday, April 12, when she was knocked down by a passing automobile. She was 78 years of age and is survived by two sons, Fred and Roy.

Mrs. Robley, before her marriage, was Miss Ella Thompson, of this city and who lived with her sister, Mrs. Rhoda Irvin, on East High street.

ENJOINS PARENTS

Jennie Genge of Chicago, who secured a temporary injunction against her parents restraining them from interfering with her life. Jennie, who is eighteen years old, states that her parents take her weekly wages and so make it impossible for her to have good times and buy clothes.

THE C. A. C. FAIR.

The thirtieth anniversary of the Circleville Athletic club, which was celebrated last week by giving a fair at the Memorial hall went over big. The first day's receipts were slim, but Friday and Saturday nights the public came to the rescue of the boys and swelled their coffers to such an extent that the receipts so far show that they will tap $3,500. The officers and the executive committee worked hard, and their efforts have been crowned with success.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

The fire department was called out this morning at 8:20 o'clock to the home of Charles Thomas on Town street. The fire was located in a clothes press and before it could be extinguished had done nearly a hundred dollars damage. The loss is covered by insurance in the Hummel & Plum agency.

FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS.

The Mississippi Flood Sufferers fund collected so far in this city has reached the sum of $1,660.92. Our quota was $1,300 and Circleville was the first town of its size in the state that reported to the Red Cross that it had gone over the top.

CIRCLEVILLE EAGLES LOST GAME SUNDAY

Reynoldsburg Team Clipped Wings of Opponents by a Score of Three to Nothing

The Eagle team, accompanied by a large delegation of fans, journeyed to Reynoldsburg Sunday where they met a Waterloo to the tune of 3 to 0. Sutton, who was on the mound for the visitors, pitched air-tight ball but the pitchers and the Roundtowners were never able to trample the home plate.

Manager Hott started Lefty Murphy in the mound and he got himself into difficulty at the beginning of the game by walking Lewis, and then Herald's attempted bunt, Lewis going to third from where he registered the first run on Kobling's fly to right.

The home team added another in the second when Kime hit safety, was sacrificed up by Terry and scored on Lewis hit. The final run came in the seventh when Lewis got a hit, took second in Herold's out at second, when Friend connected safely. Third Sacker Lewis, of the Burg team had a perfect day at bat with three bingles and a walk in four trips to the plate.

Munk Miller cracked out a pretty double in the first and Schell lashed out a triple in the ninth, with one down in each instance, but succeeding batters could not come thru with the necessary hit to score them. In only one inning did Circleville secure more than one hit, the fourth when Pratt and Schell made safeties, but Altfelter hit to the pitcher retiring the side.

Score by innings:—

Jacket Prominent in Spring Styles

Slightly Longer, and Assured Prestige in Dresses as Well as Suits.

The jacket leads in styles for spring, accenting compose effects in a mode that is tied up on every possible pretext, according to the fashion notes in Fashionable Dress Magazine, here-in summarized.

The "Fashion Forecast" of this magazine states that while the bolero which probably began this style continues popular, the slightly longer jacket is assured certain prestige in dresses as well as suits.

The short jacket matching a skirt of the same fabric and worn over a contrasting blouse, which may or may not be attached to the skirt, is naturally very softly tailored in its dress form and the suit is likewise much feminized. Belts often accompany these jackets, and yokes enter the scheme very decidedly.

In tailored dresses vestees combine well with the bolero. Many jacket treatments emphasize the compose note in costumes and the important yoke of the moment accomplishes the same thing, as for example the white yoke with the black frock or the mauve with the violet.

While the deep-pointed yoke continues to be important, Fashionable Dress Magazine points out that the square yoke is decidedly significant. Diagonal necklines have also come in-to fashion with a flourish, slanting from one shoulder to the opposite under-arm in the evening décolletage. The deep V-shaped back is still the pronounced treatment for evening, but the bateau line promises to return in summer fashions.

On every side self-ties appear on the frock or coat. These ties seem to be just a little wider and more important than heretofore. The loops are fuller, and of course materials must be soft for the right effect. A corner of the square neck is a favorite place for the fabric tie and if this treatment is repeated at the side of the waistline so much the better. Then there are ties at the front neck and waistline, at the wrists, cascade treatments of trimmings are also seen a great deal, softening the dress with a graceful ripple from shoulder to hem, effecting jabots here and there, and other effective touches.

Lace appears on every possible occasion. Fashionable Dress Magazine enumerates its use in vestees, yokes, sleeve puffs, tiers and frills, particularly in cream or black. There are all-lace dinner dresses and elaborate afternoon dresses where lace is associated with filmy stuffs like chiffon, net, georgette and marquisette.

The white evening dress maintains its important position, lending itself to lavish beading. In the evening frock wing and draped treatments continue to break the sometimes very straight lines, and wing sleeves vary the design of dinner and afternoon gowns. The irregularity of hems appears to be irrepressible. The afternoon coat of crepe, canton and satin also indulges in wing sleeves.

FLIGHT OF TIME HAS MADE CHANGES

In the Personnel of Rural Mail Carriers Out of Circleville.

Twenty-five years since the Rural Free Delivery was started out of Circleville Postoffice; of the original list of carriers only two are still on the routes, Messrs. William B. Watts and George H. May.

Within that period Messrs. H. A. Brown and George Fissell have been retired on pension, having reached the age of 65 years. The following carriers have passed to the great beyond: Samuel Kindler, George Henderson and Frank Gearhart.

The carriers are assessed 3½ per cent monthly from their wages by the Postoffice Department for the fund from which the pensions are paid. There is not much inducement for young men to enter this service as they are compelled to remain therein until the retirement age, 65 years, before they can expect to receive a pension. Under the present ruling should a carrier die in service his widow receives what has been held back on his salary, with interest. The Rural Carriers' association is making an effort to have this rule rescinded so that the widows of carriers should receive their deceased husband's pension.

When the rural routes were established at this point the amount of mail carried was negligible as compared to the present time.

TEACHING

History By Means of Moving Pictures.

The methods of teaching children have taken wonderful strides since the days when our parents were pupils in the grade schools, in fact ever since the days when we "youngsters" were lined up and asked when did Columbus discover America? changes could be noted, if any of us ever had the "time" to think about it.

Teaching children their history lessons by means of moving pictures has been used in many of the city schools and endorsed by boards of education everywhere, and we of today who have neither time nor the inclination, to make a study of the history of our country, that has been made since our leaving school, will have an opportunity to learn some of it, and receive an evening's entertainment as well, by attending the showing of the film "America Under Fire" at the Grand Theatre, next Monday and Tuesday evenings under the auspices of the local voiture 40 et 8 branch of the American Legion, with Corporal Ingleston in person to explain in doughboy fashion the meaning of the pictures.

Corporal Ingleston, who was one of the official photographers of the United States during the time of the world war is permitted to show this film which is the property of the war department, because of the part he took in the war.

The Legion has arranged to have the seats reserved for these performances in order to avoid the confusion that was apparent at the last showing, when many persons were unable to see the show after purchasing tickets. There will be no confusion this time and there will also be about 1,200 additional feet of film with the picture and in many of the scenes our own Pickaway County boys can be recognized.

Reserved seat chart is open at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store.

Civilization Fails to Dim Indian's Vision

Muskogee, Okla. — Undimmed by civilization, the keen eyesight of the Indians, essential in early days to detect the presence of enemies or of wild game for food, still is retained for the peaceful pursuits of the present generation.

Dr. Charles Southard, secretary of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, after testing the eyes of school children in nineteen states, said that the 400 Indian students at Bacone college here possess, collectively, the best eyesight of any group he had examined.

"The Indians read distant charts with ease," he said, "while their white cousins are unable to make out the largest characters."

Doctor Southard cautioned the Indians, however, that unless they stopped reading while lying in bed this marvelous faculty would be endangered.

Plan Basis for Rotation Idea

Principle of Modern Cropping Developed in Late Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Out of the practical experience of farmers over a period of 3,000 years or more has finally developed the fundamental principle of modern crop rotation, says W. W. Weir, bureau of soils, United States Department of Agriculture. This principle is the growing of an intertilled crop, a small-grain crop, and a grass or leguminous crop in the order named, and in recurring succession on a given piece of land. Four stages of farming practice during these 30 centuries have resulted in the present system of cropping, and they are recounted by Mr. Weir in order that the importance of crop rotation may be fully appreciated today.

First Resting Stage.

When cereals became the chief source of food of the early peoples it was natural that these crops should be grown on the same fields year after year. It was noted, however, that such cropping resulted in land depletion, and that resting the land renewed its producing power. This knowledge gave rise to the practice of "resting" the land, or abandoning it, at intervals to the natural growth of rough and weedy herbage. The oldest record of such a practice according to Mr. Weir, is to be found in the Mosaic laws (about 1400 B. C.) commanding the people, "And six years thou shalt sow thy land, and gather in the fruits thereof; but the seventh thou shalt let it rest and lie still." Thus we have the first or "resting" stage of cropping.

About 29 B. C., the "resting" practice gave way to one in which "bare fallow" was practiced to control the weeds. In this second stage the rotation consisted of a winter grain like wheat, followed by a spring grain like barley, which in turn was followed by bare fallow.

The third stage was marked by the introduction of legumes or clovers into the cropping system. The Flemish farmers about 1600 A. D., abolished the bare fallow practice, and grew clover in rotation with hemp, turnips, and small grains. This was a big step in the improvement of husbandry because it permitted more live stock to be kept and renewed as well as rested the land.

Legumes in Rotation.

The fourth stage was the introduction of intertilage in the field. Although the art of hoeing in between rows of plants grown in the garden had been practiced by the early Romans, apparently nobody thought of carrying the practice to the fields until English farmers adopted it during the Eighteenth century to meet the problem of weeds.

The introduction of intertilage into the field gave rise to one of the greatest improvements in agriculture, and to the completion of the basic principle of crop rotation as it is known today.

Take Remedial Measures for Spiders in Spring

There have been some inquiries relative to red spiders which apparently have shown up here and there where apples are grown. These pests work on the leaves and turn them a rusty brown in color. They stop the vigor and the growth of the trees after a certain length of time.

According to C. S. Holland, the horticulture field man at Ohio State university, the insects lay their eggs on the bud scales of the past season's growth, and hatch out in the spring as tree growth is started. Frequently the color of the leaves will indicate an infested tree as far away as 50 yards.

Remedial measures should be applied in early spring when the spider eggs are hatching, and just when the tree is beginning to grow. A 2 per cent oil emulsion spray will prove effective, and this also is effective as a dormant spray against scale.

Agricultural Items

There is no limit to the demand for the best in farm products.

Sooner or later the sheriff will knock down the run-down farm.

The first commandment of farming: Thou shalt not let thy land get poor.

Rows of garden vegetables are better than rows of druggist's bottles on the shelf.

Time spent selecting and testing seed corn will pay many dollars per hour for the labor.

The farmer who puts to wise use what he has, finds it easier to get what he wants.

Plan now for liming sour land on which you expect to plant clover, alfalfa, barley, sweet clover, Canada field peas, or canning peas or beans.

Ninety-five per cent of the statements about probable future trends in agriculture published in the 1925 and 1926 outlook reports of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington were borne out by later developments.

RUTH BROWN

SNYDER

Turned Upon Lover On Witness Stand.

Long Island City, N. Y., April 29.—(U.P.)—Her low, controlled voice tinged with cold hatred, Ruth Brown Snyder went to the witness stand today and portrayed Henry Judd Gray as a man who had once been her master.

Mrs. Snyder described unemotionally the unhappy home given her by Albert Snyder, but indicated she might have continued to be the faithful wife had it not been for the influence of her lover.

It was Gray, she charged, who first suggested the slaying of Snyder; it was Gray who advocated the idea of increasing Snyder's insurance, and it was Gray who committed the murder.

PNEUMONIA

Caused the Death of Richard Phillips -Funeral Services at Hebron Church.

Richard Sylvester Phillips died at his home in Monroe township last Friday night after an illness of ten days of pneumonia.

He was the son of John and Leah Ferrell Phillips and was born in Rome county, West Virginia, on the 8th day of July, 1866.

He was united in marriage to Cora Cadle and to this union the following children survive: Opie, Everett, Otho, Ethel, Gladys and Silas. Besides his wife and children, he is survived by one brother, Silas Phillips, Dunbar, West Virginia, and one sister, Mrs. Fannie Taylor, Walton, West Virginia.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Hebron M. E. church conducted by Rev. W. W. Trout. Interment in the Hebron cemetery.

Public Servants

In 1855 civil service reform was debated and Daniel Webster expounded the following proposition: "The theory of our institution is plain; it is that government is an agency created for the good of the people and that every person in office is the agent and servant of the people. Offices are created not for the good of those who are to fill them, but for the public convenience."

A Gift for Miss Hildegard

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

IT WAS early summer when Hildegard Wood met her ideal man—and she, a successful school teacher, had formed her hasty opinion in three minutes. It happened on the train when she was homeward bound for the long summer vacation; and as he was her neighbor in the pullman, occupying the next chair to her own, it fell to his lot to pick up a huge armful of roses that some of her admiring pupils had flung at her when the train started.

"Thank you so much," Hildegard murmured as the stranger crouched down to rescue the last delightful pink bud from under his own chair.

The porter, hovering at her elbow, offered to put them in the refrigerator of the buffet car just behind. "They'll keep nice and cold, madam, and no trouble at all; thank you, ma'am." And the porter vanished with the roses.

"Looks like anything except a schoolma'm," pondered the young man who wore shell-rimmed spectacles, and had quantities of brown hair.

It was the young man's ill luck to lose sight of Hildegard as she left the train, so that he never saw who it was that met her, but the next day he wisely sought the "red caps" at the station and made diligent inquiries.

"If you means a lady wid viletts," said one of the porters whom he questioned, "I sure toted her bags. I dunno her name, but she grabbed a lady at de gate and says, 'Deah M! Gunlow, or somefin like dat.'"

Billy Remsen thanked the man joyfully, tipped him generously, and rushed off. Surely he knew Mrs. Gunderlow! He hoped it was his dear Cousin Ruth Gunderlow. If it wasn't, Ruth could probably introduce him to some of her Gunderlow-in-laws! He called Ruth on the telephone later, and told her he had thought of calling, if she would be home that night.

"Billy Remsen!" exclaimed his cousin enthusiastically. "I thought you were in Buffalo—your man told me the other day—do come to dinner tonight, and spend the evening—I have an old school friend here, just arrived from up-state."

So happy Billy Remsen stopped at a florist's, and, laden with a huge box of flowers, he arrived five minutes before dinner.

"Hildegard, dear, may I introduce my cousin, Billy Remsen? Billy, this is Miss Wood, my old school friend!" Ruth, not twenty-five herself, danced off to meet her young husband who was entering.

"Well, Hildegard! I am glad to see you," he exclaimed, "and how are you, Billy?" he asked slapping the happy, spectacled youth on the back.

"How am I? Starved!" blurted Billy, and just then dinner was announced and Billy offered his arm to his cousin and Hildegard went to her place with Mr. Gunderlow.

It was a merry meal, and although Hildegard and Billy confessed themselves thoroughly surprised at the meeting, and explained the coincidence to their host and hostess, Billy said nothing about his quizzing of the station porters that had resulted so fortunately.

It was a delightful evening for all of them, especially Hildegard and Billy Remsen, but it was when Billy was leaving that Jack Gunderlow managed to whisper a word to him.

"Pretty girl, eh, Billy?"

"I'll say so!" was Billy's enthusiastic reply.

"Don't lose your heart, old man, you know she's engaged?"

"No!" exploded poor Billy who had quite lost his heart.

"Yes—just happened—she's pretty happy, eh?"

"Seems so," growled Billy, and therefore when he said farewell to Hildegard, he was in the lowest depths of gloom.

All that summer, Hildegard Wood waited, hoping that Billy Remsen would find out her home address and come and see her. He did not come, but one glorious August day there came a box of flowers for her, containing Billy's card. White roses and lilies-of-the-valley—such bride roses she had never seen, and she knew that in the bottom of her heart that she loved Billy Remsen.

Of course she must thank him, and yet she did not know his address—perhaps Ruth could tell her. So Ruth told her gladly, and Hildegard wrote a happy, cheerful note—or rather she wrote half a dozen notes to Billy before she had one that suited her, and in it she told him that she was so happy because she was engaged to teach at Blue Lake school for the coming year.

The next day, Hildegard, picking roses in their garden, was surprised by the sight of a gray clad young man sprinting down the garden path.

"It cannot be a messenger boy," thought Hildegard, and, of course, it wasn't anybody but Billy Remsen!

"I understand that you were engaged!" he breathed heavily.

Hildegard looked puzzled. "Only to teach school another year," she stammered.

"Resign!" shouted Mr. Remsen joyfully, "you're going to marry me and go to Egypt for a honeymoon!"

By the time Billy met Jack Gunderlow, he had got over his chagrin, for he was the happiest man in the world, and as for Jack, he had forgotten long ago his silly joke.

OHIO HISTORY ASSOCIATION HELD MEETING

Officers and Directors Elected and Plans Made For Celebration in October.

The directors of the Ohio History Day association met in this city at the chamber of commerce rooms Saturday afternoon.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Howard Jones; vice president, John Carlisle; secretary, Miss Agnes Butch; treasurer, Mrs. G. G. Leist.

There was one vacancy on the board of directors and this was filled by the election of Miss Elizabeth Ruggles, of Pasadena, California, a former resident of Circleville, who has always been interested in the preservation of Logan Elm. Other members of the board are: Mrs. J. F. Schoedinger, Mrs. John F. Carlisle, C. B. Galbreath, Vernon Riegel, Columbus; C. C. Chappellear, J. W. Johnson, Colonel C. E. Groce, General George Florence, John Wilson, M. C. Warren, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Leist, of this city.

Thru Senator Chappellear, the legislature appropriated $400 for the use of the State Archaeological society in improving the water supply and other sanitary conditions about the grounds. The money will be available the first of July.

The directors formulated plans for a program for Ohio History day to be held the first Sunday in October at Logan Elm park.

This annual event brings thousands of visitors to Circleville and every citizen should do his part in making the event a success. The annual dues are one dollar, payable to either the secretary or treasurer.

Following the adjournment the directors repaired to the Boggs hotel where they took dinner.

Extremes in Stature

In the Royal College of Surgeons in London there is the skeleton of the "Irish giant," Charles Byrne, who died in 1783. His height was 7 feet 8 1/2 inches. The skeleton of the Sicilian dwarf, Caroline Crahand, is 18.8 inches. The average height of the European is estimated to be 5 feet 7 1/2 inches.

AMUSEMENTS

Thrills, laughs, spectacle, drama, these are the things that go to make "Slide, Kelly, Slide" one of the outstanding pictures of the year.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer play—biggest baseball story in the history of the screen, and now playing at the Met theater, is unique. In the first place, the director, Edward Sedgwick, filmed the World Series, took its crucial plays and wove them into a dramatic background for his story. Thousands of yelling fans in grandstands; the nation's two foremost teams at death grips—this is the beginning or postulate of the picture.

In this is woven an intimate story of American baseball; the story of a young "busher" who learns to pitch, makes the big team, becomes a star, gets the "swelled" head" thereby—and then learns the greatest lesson of life.

It is just life itself—told amid the surge and thunder of the great American game.

Haines is Great.

William Haines, who played the hero of "Brown of Harvard" was the logical man for Kelly. His whimsical humor and inimitable portrayal do much to make the picture what it is, and Sally O'Neil makes a very piquant heroine.

Harry Carey is seen in one of the most remarkable roles of the picture as the veteran catcher, preceptor and patron of the boy from the country team. It is a sympathetic role that calls for the most skillful acting; Carey makes it a living thing. Karl Dane as the lanky pitcher has a role that will be remembered almost as long as his "Slim" in "The Big Parade." Eileen Sedgwick and Dane do an inimitable piece of comedy.

Dorothy Sebastian, Paul Kelly, Warner Richmond, Guinn Williams, Junior Coghlan, all have roles they fill admirably. Among the professional ball players in the picture the best actors are Bob and "Irish" Meusel and Tony Lazzari, of the Yankees, enlisted as members of the cast. Edward Sedgwick, of "Tin Hats" fame, is the director.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

We never aim to talk much about the weather, for that's a pretty sure sign of being hard pressed for a way to stay sociable. But we can't keep from saying that with the sun sifting down real warm and the maple leaves busting out, and the air full of a scent of peach tree blossoms, why we're mighty glad to be here and have things just like they are.

Mrs. Amanda Bell had her dining room repapered last week and she lacked just the least little bit of having enough paper to finish the job. But she managed to make it come out so she could cover the place with a big picture she's got.

Grover Morgan has started to repaint his automobile so as to be in harmony with the spring season and he discussed with his wife all week what color look best. He leaned strong toward red, but she wanted it dark blue, so they compromised on light blue.

Enoch Budd stood on the postoffice corner a good while last Saturday waiting for some man that was to meet him there at noon and settle a $3 debt. But the man didn't come, and after Enoch had waited till 4 o'clock he gave it up and said he did not look for him any of the time.

Luther Newton started to spade up a big flower bed for Sidney Moon yesterday. But he didn't get much done on account of Sidney's bull dog came up and started to growl so that Luther was afraid to go ahead until Sidney came back. And the reason was that the dog had a lot of meat bones buried there and was suspicious of Luther.

Miss Gloria Blossom is down from the city to visit her aunt, Mrs. Hettie Thomas, for a week or two. And she's been making some long distance telephone calls that Mrs. Thomas is worried they'll be charged against her phone.

A remark was made the other day that Joe Dodds must have awful good nerves, for he never seems to let on or be shocked by any kind of a sudden noise. And somebody said that the reason is he's got so used to hearing the old tires on his flivver blow out, that nothing surprises him any more.

Tom Riley got tolerably well soaked in the shower of rain which we had yesterday. While he was up on his roof fixing a place behind the chimney, somebody came along and borrowed his ladder not knowing where Tom was. And when the rain came up he couldn't get down.

Some of the members of the Woman's Discussion club were talking the other day about how self-control can be cultivated. And Mrs. Ed Thomas said she didn't know of anything that tries a person more than to go into a picture show in the middle of a picture and keep from looking at it until it starts at the first again.

Milton Hall suffered a painful shock a day or two ago when several heavy things fell out of a clothes closet on his head. It seems like in preparing for some company, Mrs. Hall had filled the closet too full of things she didn't want seen and when Milton opened the door in an unsuspecting way, why the contents spilled out on his head.

Felix Cobb drove up to the city last Tuesday in his machine and while he was parked up there, a policeman marked with chalk on one of his tires. Felix was puzzled to know what that meant, and when he inquired of somebody, they said to wait until the policeman came along again and ask him. Which Felix did, and it cost him $5 for being parked too long in one place.

Andrew Allen is bothered a good deal at this writing on account of they's a big mark on his calendar that he made last month to remind him to do something today, and he can't remember what it was.

Incites "War" to Kill

Pests Among Insects

Seattle, Wash.—Important to humans, although almost unnoticed by the general public, a war of extinction between mortal enemies in the insect world has been going on in the Pacific Northwest for four years and the end is not yet in sight.

The warfare was instigated by Prof. Trevor Kincaid, professor of biology at the University of Washington, in an attempt to control a serious infestation known as the earwig, a species of harmful insect, by importing parasitical tachinade flies from Europe.

The tachinade flies are natural enemies of the earwig. Both came from Europe originally.

When poison bait and other weapons failed to check the encroachments of the earwig, the flies were pitted against them, first in a laboratory arena, where the earwig was victorious, and then in the fields at large. An omnivorous eater of all growing things, the earwig also ensconces itself snugly in clothing or shipments of goods and does considerable damage.

If you want to make it easy for your competitors, worry about them.

Machines That Will

Start When Looked At

New York.—Mechanical window displays that automatically start to operate when a person stops to watch, lights of a city that may be turned on by a single drop of rain, or costly jewels loosely laid around and apparently unprotected, but arranged so that a bell loudly rings when a prospective crook's hand draws near, are now a possibility as the result of a new electric relay. The device was invented by D. D. Knowles, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

It is known as the Knowles grid-glow relay, and resembles a radio set vacuum tube in appearance. When properly connected, a billionth of a watt of electrical energy, about one-fortieth the amount of energy exerted by a fly climbing an inch in a second, is sufficient to control the flow of a current a hundred million times as great, and this current, in opening or closing another relay, can control currents as high as 25 amperes, as much as used to operate large motors.

Jats Were Scythians

The Jats of India, a race of mysterious origin, are thought to be Scythians that became Hinduized. They reached the height of their power in the Eighteenth century, and were overthrown by the British in 1826.

Nice Little Windfall

William Morrison of Wheeling, W. Va., driving to Washington, D. C., at night, ran out of gasoline. Climbing from his machine he flagged with a flashlight the first machine approaching, a big truck. The truck slowed up, but did not stop. As it passed him, something struck Morrison in the face. He found it to be a sealed envelope which contained a $100 bill.

District Attorney Banton, who is going to drive obscene plays from the New York stage, is a critic of ability, and at a recent dinner party he hit off neatly an actor's spiritless performance in a blank verse drama.

THE PURITANSNOT SO BLEAK

"Our Puritan fathers brewed beer, casked wine, and distilled brandy. Their sexual life was abundant, productive. Else some of us authentic New Englanders would not be here to tell the tale; and Longfellow would not have been the descendant of Priscilla Mullins, whom in point of fact Miles Standish did not woo, because he already had a second wife—a prohibitive fact in those times as in these.

John Macy, the author offers the above to prove his contention that the Puritans were not really so bleak and blue-nosed as popularly believed.

"It is the fashion in our time to designate as 'puritanic' any encroachment on our individual liberties," Mr. Macy writes in the May Harpers Magazine.

"Puritanism has been lately confounded with Prohibitionism and Fundamentalism. I find that most people know little about the Puritans, who they were, what they thought, what they did.

"The Puritans, the early New Englanders, were undoubtedly severe in their punishment of departures from matrimonial regularity. The Hester Prynnes was marked with the scarlet letter, and Hawthorne's romance is to a certain extent founded on fact; historians tell us that the penalty is to be found in the laws of Boston and Plymouth in the middle of the seventeenth century. But severity of punishment prevailed in all countries, and those who inflicted the punishment were whoever happened to be in authority. No sect, party, government in England or anywhere else in Europe was guiltless of the most ferocious acts of punitive violence. People were killed, tortured, maimed, branded with hot irons, more terrible physically if not emotional than the imprint of an embroidered letter.

"And are we much more liberal and forgiving? The ostracism of Hester Prynne, with its visible symbol, is not more severe and merciless than that visited upon some errant women of our time. The fate of Hester Prynne is no more tragic than that of Anna Karenina. And if both women be the fictitious creations of tragic romantic artists, romantic art in the work of men strongly possessed by ethical considerations does represent the social temper of the period and the race."

CUTS TELEGRAPH LINE TO SAVE LIFE

Trapper Loses Right to Hunt by Act.

Ottawa, Ont.—Old Benny, who has roamed the northern marshes of British Columbia for fifty years, setting his traps and tending his nets, will trap no more.

The remote and inaccessible defiles of the northern Rockies will never again echo and re-echo with the crack of his rifle.

Old Benny will not hunt or trap again because the Indian department will not permit him to tramp the forests alone. When the piercing north wind drove even the wild animals to shelter Old Benny, stricken with a sudden illness, came face to face with death. Without strength to reach his log cabin and with no human beings within a hundred miles, he struggled on until he came to a narrow ravine—Telegraph creek—and there he collapsed.

However, Old Benny was not yet through. Lying in the snow, he saw a thin strand of copper wire—the telegraph line maintained by the Canadian government between British Columbia and the Yukon. Summoning his remaining strength, he cut the wire in the hope that the federal government "trouble shooters" would find the break and come to him before he perished.

Last Christmas day the trouble party set out with a dog team. Christmas night they found the break and Old Benny. He was badly frozen and semiconscious, but was carried back to civilization and now has fully recovered.

The Indian department has ruled that Old Benny's trapping days are over. He must live on a reserve within reach of medical attention and will be maintained out of government funds.

OHIO LIVE- STOCK DAYS

Experimental Stock to Be Shown
At Wooster, Fostoria, Bellefontaine and Circleville.

Friday, May 27, is Livestock Day at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster. Six carloads of cattle, sheep and hogs now on test at the Station will be arranged in groups so that the results of the experiments may be easily comprehended and the groups placed in observation pens for inspection. Later they will be exhibited at Fostoria, Bellefontaine and Circleville.

Out-of-state speakers in addition to the local experimenters will have a worth while message to Ohio farmers, and feeders who have learned to look forward to Livestock Day at the Station as a big annual event.

Feeders no longer depend solely upon bulletins and other printed accounts of tests, but take advantage of these livestock days when they may see the animals themselves at a time when they show the effects of feeding and other factors to the best advantage.

The Livestock Specialists of the Ohio State University have been active in arranging to have the experimental animals exhibited at three other points in Ohio after the day at Wooster on May 27. The six carloads of stock will be detrained and shown at Fostoria, Tuesday, May 31; at Bellefontaine, Thursday, June 2, and at Circleville, Saturday, June 4.

This trip is similar to one made two years ago when great interest was manifested at the different stops by the several thousand people in attendance.

Danger to Gems

As pearls consist of carbonate of lime, vinegar and other acids will eat away the polished surface in a short time. Hot water is fatal to an opal, destroying its fire and sometimes causing it to crack. Soap is a deadly enemy of the turquoise. If a turquoise ring is kept on the hand while washing, in a short time the blue stones will turn to a dingy green.

SALMON'S WEALTH GREATER THAN GOLD

Fish Lead in Exports From Far Alaska.

Ketchikan, Alaska.—From the island-dotted waterways of Alaska's thousands of miles of coast has come a wealth more precious, more vital even than gold. It is the wealth of the sea itself—of the teeming millions of salmon that have been taken from the bosom of the North Pacific and placed on the world's table.

Since Alaska was purchased from Russia, sixty years ago, salmon has led the list of exports from the territory, with $810,750,038 to its credit—a figure which multiplies nearly eighty-five fold the price which Uncle Sam paid for the territory.

The romance of the Klondike has not dimmed in the hearts of the Alaskans, nor has the gold fever of the late nineties, which sent thousands into the territory, been forgotten anywhere in the United States. But, despite the mineral wealth of the territory, the salmon exports lead those of gold by $250,000,000.

Best Source of Revenue.

With agricultural production practically negligible, it is not for the Alaskan to gain his wealth—or even to earn his daily bread—through tilling the soil or trekking about on a sort of hill and valley heigira seeking "pay dirt." Rather it is his mission to don sou'wester and slicker, boots and gloves; to board his boat and to steer for the fishing banks.

Thousands of men, many of them native Alaskan Indians, are engaged in salmon fishing or canning and subsidiary industries. The number during 1925 was estimated at more than 25,000. The investment at that time was set at $55,400,000.

Salmon fishing is permissible in several ways. Legislation, of course, prevents taking salmon from the mouths of streams when they migrate each season to spawn, and recently, under the regulations perfected by the bureau of fisheries, closed seasons have been in effect at the height of the summer season in order to allow more salmon to get to the spawning grounds. This measure is being taken to assure perpetuity of the supply.

The most common form of fishing is the traps. These are built by various individuals and corporations at points approved by the government. Through a series of wire meshes migrating salmon are caught by the thousand. Once and twice a day the traps are hauled (depending upon how the fish are "running") and the salmon taken to canneries in the vicinity. Another common form is trolling. Small boats manned by one or two men travel inside waters, allowing hooks and lines to drag behind. These are baited with "spoons" designed to represent herring.

Traps Largely Used.

The operations of the seine boats largely have been displaced by the traps. Natives, however, in the southeastern section still operate their boats. Larger crews are required for these boats, which throw out huge nets, the edges of which have cork floaters. When the ends are joined the net is hauled in and—if good fortune has played its hand—hundreds or even thousands of salmon are taken in one haul.

Ketchikan offers an interesting sight for the tourist. The canneries, some of them located near the steamer landings, operate night and day during the season. Most of the work is done by machinery.

Salmon fishing, however, is not confined to the southeastern part of the territory, but is more or less common all along the coast. Due to the nature of the country, however, southeastern Alaska is more adaptable both to the salmon and the agencies which seek to can them.

In addition to canning, mild curing and the packing of fresh fish offer employment to hundreds the year around. During 1925 the value of these products was set at $1,751,369.

The total number of salmon taken from Alaskan waters during 1925 was 79,477,600. In 1922 the number was only 72,370,400.

Military Barracks Now Used as Hospitals

Stockholm, Sweden.—Transformation of Sweden's empty military barracks into modern hospitals, historical museums and insane asylums has been recommended by a committee appointed by the government.

The problem of what to do with the buildings arose from the army reduction decided on two years ago.

In Stockholm the collections of the state historical museum have long overcrowded the space hitherto available and the government antiquarian Dr. Signard Curman, has found that the heavy artillery barracks can be reconstructed into display rooms.

In the provincial garrison towns use of the empty barracks as sanitariums or as regular hospitals is proposed and in Sala, Orebro, Venersborg and Jonkoping the committee favors the transformation of the barracks into institutions for the care of idiots, imbeciles and the insane.

Buy A Car With This Extra Money

FINANCIAL authorities announce that we now have a 70-cent dollar. In 1920 it was a 40-cent dollar worth—in purchasing power, not much more than half the dollar of today. These computations are based on one dollar's worth of general commodities at pre-war prices. The automobile dollar has increased in value at an even faster pace. It will actually buy more today than the pre-war automobile dollar.

You are making more money now, even tho your income is no greater. Add to your life the advantages of up-to-date automotive transportation—exemplified at its best by the 1927 Ford line. Come in and talk it over.

THRIFT PAINT DAY

Saturday, May 7th, 1927

SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unredacted form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

200 Rattlesnakes Killed by Charge of Dynamite

Hot Springs, S. D.—Guy Keyes, a forest ranger whose station is near Keystone, in Harney national forest, forty miles from Hot Springs, saw a rattlesnake glide along ahead of him as he rode over his range, and disappear in a crevice of boulders a short distance away.

He followed in order to kill the reptile. On coming close to the rock he saw a great mass of slowly writhing snakes in a recess in the boulders.

Realizing that he could not cope with such numbers, Keyes rode to his station and secured dynamite, which he used to blow up both rocks and snakes. As accurate a count as could be made afterward showed that there were about 200 snakes killed.

SPEEDING AUTO BADLY INJURES LESLIE KARR

At Laurelville Saturday Night, Impact Throws Him Against Wind Shield.

Leslie Karr, the 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Karr, near Stringtown was run down by an auto last Saturday evening near the old cider mill at Laurelville and was seriously injured. The fender of the car struck Karr, who was walking along the road and he was tossed up and landed on the hood of the car, his head striking the windshield with such force that his skull was fractured.

The driver of the car, Walter Hunter, of Whisler, was accompanied by a Miss Myrtle Lutz, of near Laurelville. The pair drove the car some distance following the accident and abandoned the machine on the road. They were so badly frightened they did not know what to do, but finally went to Laurelville and gave themselves up to the authorities. They were released and were allowed to go to their homes.

The injured man was removed to Grant hospital, Columbus. Reports from his bedside Monday morning are that he failed to recover consciousness.

HONOR PROFESSOR ARMSTRONG Ohio Wesleyan university officials at Delaware have announced establishment of "The Gordon N. Armstrong Professorship of Mathematics" in memory of Professor Gordon N. Armstrong, who was head of the mathematics department from 1910 until his death in 1926.

Professor Armstrong's mother and sister, Mrs. Alice L. Armstrong and Miss Alice D. Armstrong of Laurelville have completed arrangements with the university which will make the professorship possible.

Details of the plan have not been made public, but it is known that a large amount has been turned over to school authorities, said to be about $75,000. Armstrong graduated in 1897, took his M. A. at Harvard and his doctor's degree at Munich. He joined the Ohio Wesleyan faculty in 1905 and became head of his department five years later.

BOY SCOUTS HONOR MONTE BEAVER SUNDAY

Former Circleville Boy Was Given Unusual Recognition in Columbus Sunday.

At a recognition service for Troop No. 60, Boy Scouts, a meeting held in First Methodist Episcopal church, Bryden road and Eighteenth street, Columbus, Sunday evening, an honor patrol was formed, honoring Monte Beaver, former scoutmaster who was present at the meeting.

Twenty-one troops of the east end were invited to participate in the service and scout headquarters were represented by Scout Commissioner Edwin Burdell, who made an address on "Scouting and Its Relation to Church and School." Dr. T. T. Crawford, the pastor of the church spoke on the subject, "An Interview with Sir Robert Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the World."

The Godman Guild Bugle corps and the Junior choir of First church furnished the music for the occasion. Andrew D. Rogers is scoutmaster of Troop No. 60 and Roy Boyce is assistant scoutmaster.

FRIEDMANS ESTABLISH NEW STORE

An important business deal was completed Thursday afternoon, that means a fine new store for Chillicothe in the very near future.

The store room at 18 East Main street, formerly occupied by the Sales Store company and managed by M. Skor, who died recently, was leased by John P. Phillips Sr., to the Friedman concern, now conducting large stores in Circleville and Lancaster with a New York office and ladies' ready-to-wear goods. The lease runs for three years with a five year option.

The work of remodeling the store, will it is announced, be started about August first next and the store will be opened for business about September first. A high class line of ladies' ready-to-wear goods will be handled. The store will be managed by Max Friedman, son of the widow of Ben Friedman, a former Chillicothe resident.

This proposed opening of a Friedman store here has something of historic interest as the Friedmans were originally a Chillicothe family, the new main store on South Paint street being a well known store here some thirty years ago and Mrs. Friedman being in charge of one of its departments.

Max Friedman, who will manage the new Chillicothe store, is, of course a brother of our own "Ted Lewis." Scioto Gazette.

Offer Students Prizes for Best Safety Essays

New York.—In 1926, there were 5,921 highway grade-crossing accidents in which 2,492 persons were killed and 6,991 injured. In 1925, there were 5,479 accidents in which 2,296 persons were killed and 6,555 injured.

In an effort to interest the public and especially the younger generation, in preventing grade-crossing accidents, the railroads, through the American Railway association, have announced an offer of three prizes in a nationwide contest to be awarded to school and college students. The prizes are to be $250 each, one for the best essay prepared by a grammar school student, one for the best, by a high school student, and one for the best, by a college student. The subject in all cases is to be "Crossings Cautiously," and each essay must be not more than 250 words in length. Detailed plans for the contest have been arranged by J. C. Caviston, secretary of the safety section of the association, with headquarters at 30 Vesey street, New York. The contest closes on June 1.

All Are Finger-Printed

In Argentina there is a national finger-printing law, and as a result the 10,000,000 or more inhabitants are all recorded by this system. It is this regulation which makes Argentina the one country in the world, it is said, where one may not lose his or her identity.

PLOT TO KIDNAP HEIRESS TO MILLIONS

UNCOVERED IN CHICAGO TAPPED WIRE DISCLOSES

The Plans of a Notorious Gunman In the Shadow of the Gallows Engineered the Scheme Frustrated—Jean Schweppe Aged 11, and Her Brother John Aged 9, Were the Victims—When Conspiracy Was Bared Rifleman Were Called Out To Guard Aristocratic Neighborhood.

Henry "Midget" Fernekes, notorious gunman recently removed from the Cook county jail, where he awaited a sentence of death, to Joliet penitentiary, engineered an unsuccessful plot to kidnap an 11 year old girl heiress to a $15,000,000 estate and hold her for a cash ransom of $1,000,000, the authorities revealed Sunday night at Chicago.

The intended victim was Jean Schweppe, daughter of Charles H. Schweppe, wealthy bond broker and granddaughter of John G. Shedd, late president of Marshall Field and company. The girl and a younger brother are heirs to part of the $15,000,000 Shedd estate.

"Midget," wanted in New York for murder and in other states for bank robberies, was convicted of murder and held in jail for months awaiting execution. Recently he was granted a new trial by the state supreme court and removed to serve part of a 10 year sentence for robbery.

The Schweppe home in the exclusive North Shore suburb of Lake Forest has been under the vigilant guard of two dozen detectives for a week. Sunday night eight men armed with shotguns and rifles patrolled the estate and mansion, and even maintained a vigilant watch on the water front, fearing an attempt might be made to kidnap the child by approach from Lake Michigan.

The plot to kidnap the little heiress was believed to have been hatched in the Cook county jail while Fernekes was an inmate.

Fernekes, unable to assume active command of the kidnaping, used as his right-hand man a Chicago gunman, once confined in murderers' row with him, authorities said.

He entrusted to this man the details of the amazing conspiracy.

A Chicago detective accidentally uncovered the kidnaping plot. Mindful of the Midget's many attempts to escape or cause trouble, detectives had been watching his friends and one of them overheard two women talking of the kidnaping. From their conversation the detective learned the details of the plot.

The exclusive Lake Forest suburb Sunday was a city under siege as fear of the kidnapers spread to other socially prominent residents of the town of vast estates. At nightfall women and children were off the streets.

Fernekes is one of the few strong-arm crooks ever to live up to the police description of "a master mind." Born in Chicago, he started in 1916, when 18 years old, as a holdup man, later branching out into bank robbery. The police have attributed 14 bank robberies in and around Chicago to Fernekes, along with the slaying of two Pennsylvania state troopers and a slaying in New York.

He was caught in April, 1925, while poring over chemistry books in a library, later explaining that he wanted to experiment with bombs to blow safes. He was tried and convicted of the murder of the treasurer of a building and loan association in a $12,000 holdup and sentenced to be hanged.

Last summer, while awaiting sentence of death, he tried to dynamite the jail, and later two or three attempts to escape were uncovered by jail guards, one of them almost at the time when it appeared the "Midget" might be successful. A few days ago he was granted a new trial on the murder charge and was taken to Joliet to serve some of the 10-year sentence for bank robbery before he is tried again.

TO WED FRENCHMAN

Miss Helen Cassin Carusi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Carusi and a popular member of the younger set in the national capital, whose engagement to Commandant Emmanuel Lombard, assistant military attaché of the French embassy, has been announced. The wedding will probably take place this summer.

OFFICERS FOR ELECTIONS ARE REAPPOINTED

Dr. G. S. Corne, Republican, and H. W. Plum, Democrat, both of Circleville were appointed deputy state supervisors of elections for Pickaway county, upon recommendation of the county Republican executive and Democratic committees respectively by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, in his official capacity as state supervisor and inspector of elections.

The appointments became effective May 1, for a period of two years. Compensation of board members is determined by the number of voting precincts in the county where the appointment is made.

Taking the "Park" Out of Park Avenue

To meet the ever-increasing traffic of Park avenue, New York, the lanes on each side of the thoroughfare are being removed, making the entire width of the street available for vehicles.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Dayton—Two thousand electric refrigeration units will be produced each working day by the recently enlarged plants of the Frigidaire Corporation, it was announced today.

Hamilton—Donald Butts, 4, was killed, and his mother and sister, Dorothy, 6, were injured when their auto was struck by a train at West Middletown. The crossing was congested by persons watching a circus unload. Authorities exonerated the conductor and engineer of the train.

Warren—Charles Steinmetz, indicted on two counts for the holdup and robbery of the Cortland savings bank in March on trial before Judge Carter today on the indictment returned in connection with the second holdup. He pled not guilty when arraigned on the indictment.

Bellaire—Ella Doty, 26, was under arrest today believed to be the mysterious "blonde" whom police have hunted in the murder of Angelo Barbini, whose body was found in a barrel on the rubbish pile of a Bellaire dump.

The body was nailed into the barrel with spikes, several of which penetrated the skull. Friends of the dead man have maintained the last person he was seen with was a blonde woman. It is said the couple were in Wheeling prior to the murder.

Toledo—Six persons were dead and several were recovering today from injuries received in auto accidents in and near Toledo over the weekend.

Mary Louise Brady, 17, Fremont, was killed when the car in which she was a passenger overturned. Other occupants of the car who were injured are; Elaine Muchmore, 17, Fremont, serious; Ross Irons and Cleo Soutnef, both 19, of Clyde, cuts and bruises.

PARK REFORESTED.

The state park surrounding Old Man's Cave in Hocking county, which is one thousand acres in extent, has been practically reforested. Nearly seventy-five thousand pine trees have been planted in the past three weeks. The work was finished last Saturday.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTRIBUTION Class No. 3, of Hedges Chapel, thru Homer S. Reber contributed $10 to the Red Cross, for the Mississippi Relief fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henn spent Sunday in Columbus.

A TERRIFIC COLLISION AT MACKEY FORD

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. James Valentine of Ashville Were Seriously Injured.

Mr. and Mrs. James Valentine, of Ashville, were seriously injured Sunday at noon in an automobile collision at the intersection of Mackey Ford road and the Columbus pike.

They were returning home from a journey to Magnetic Springs, where they had taken their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Will Valentine, for treatment. They were riding in a Ford car, and as they neared the Columbus pike, they stopped to let two southbound cars go by before crossing the pike and as they neared the center of the Columbus pike they were struck by a southbound Jordan car, driven by a woman, which was going at high speed so it is claimed. The Valentine car was hit squarely in the center and doubled up like a fan. Mrs. Valentine went thru the windshield and was nearly scalped. Her husband was found beneath the car and it is feared he was injured internally. His right wrist was broken and he was badly bruised about the body.

Mrs. Valentine was Miss Priscilla Katharine Cromley before her marriage. Reports from the home Monday morning are not encouraging. Mr. Valentine expectorated blood during the night. Dr. Hosler and Dr. Shift are their attending physicians.

Edward and Israel Valentine, of this city, went to Ashville today to see their injured brother and sister-in-law.

THE SICK

Mrs. Flora Gorton, of East Union street, is ill of the shingles.

KILLED BY AUTO

Word has been received here of the death in Portland, Washington, of Mrs. Ella Robley, who was killed in that city Tuesday, April 12, when she was knocked down by a passing automobile. She was 78 years of age and is survived by two sons, Fred and Roy.

Mrs. Robley, before her marriage, was Miss Ella Thompson, of this city and who lived with her sister, Mrs. Rhoda Irvin, on East High street.

ENJOINS PARENTS

Jennie Genge of Chicago, who secured a temporary injunction against her parents restraining them from interfering with her life. Jennie, who is eighteen years old, states that her parents take her weekly wages and so make it impossible for her to have good times and buy clothes.

THE C. A. C. FAIR.

The thirtieth anniversary of the Circleville Athletic club, which was celebrated last week by giving a fair at the Memorial hall went over big. The first day's receipts were slim, but Friday and Saturday nights the public came to the rescue of the boys and swelled their coffers to such an extent that the receipts so far show that they will tap $3,500. The officers and the executive committee worked hard, and their efforts have been crowned with success.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

The fire department was called out this morning at 8:20 o'clock to the home of Charles Thomas on Town street. The fire was located in a clothes press and before it could be extinguished had done nearly a hundred dollars damage. The loss is covered by insurance in the Hummel & Plum agency.

FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS.

The Mississippi Flood Sufferers fund collected so far in this city has reached the sum of $1,660.92. Our quota was $1,300 and Circleville was the first town of its size in the state that reported to the Red Cross that it had gone over the top.

CIRCLEVILLE EAGLES LOST GAME SUNDAY

Reynoldsburg Team Clipped Wings of Opponents by a Score of Three to Nothing.

The Eagle team, accompanied by a large delegation of fans, journeyed to Reynoldsburg Sunday where they met a Waterloo to the tune of 3 to 0. Sutton, who was on the mound for the visitors, pitched air-tight ball but the pitchers and the Roundtowners were never able to trample the home plate.

Manager Hott started Lefty Murphy in the mound and he got himself into difficulty at the beginning of the game by walking Lewis, and then Herald's attempted bunt, Lewis going to third from where he registered the first run on Kobling's fly to right.

The home team added another in the second when Kime hit safety, was sacrificed up by Terry and scored on Lewis hit. The final run came in the seventh when Lewis got a hit, took second in Herold's out at second, when Friend connected safely. Third Sacker Lewis, of the Burg team had a perfect day at bat with three bingles and a walk in four trips to the plate.

Munk Miller cracked out a pretty double in the first and Schell lashed out a triple in the ninth, with one down in each instance, but succeeding batters could not come thru with the necessary hit to score them. In only one inning did Circleville secure more than one hit, the fourth when Pratt and Schell made safeties, but Altfelter hit to the pitcher retiring the side.

Score by innings:—

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	T
Circleville	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Reynoldsburg	1	1	0	0	0	1	0	x	3

Errors—Thomas 2; Murphy; two base hits Miller, Sutton; three base hit; Schell; sacrifice hits, Herald, Terry; struck out by Murphy 5; by Kanavil 2, by Sutton 8. Bases on balls, off Murphy 2; off Sutton 2. Umpire, Lowery.

Jacket Prominent in Spring Styles

Slightly Longer, and Assured Prestige in Dresses as Well as Suits.

The jacket leads in styles for spring, accentuating compose effects in a mode that is tied up on every possible pretext, according to the fashion notes in Fashionable Dress Magazine, here-in summarized.

The "Fashion Forecast" of this magazine states that while the bolero which probably began this style continues popular, the slightly longer jacket is assured certain prestige in dresses as well as suits.

The short jacket matching a skirt of the same fabric and worn over a contrasting blouse, which may or may not be attached to the skirt, is naturally very softly tailored in its dress form and the suit is likewise much feminized. Belts often accompany these jackets, and yokes enter the scheme very decidedly.

In tailored dresses vestees combine well with the bolero. Many jacket treatments emphasize the compose note in costumes and the important yoke of the moment accomplishes the same thing, as for example the white yoke with the black frock or the mauve with the violet.

While the deep-pointed yoke continues to be important, Fashionable Dress Magazine points out that the square yoke is decidedly significant. Diagonal necklines have also come into fashion with a flourish, slanting from one shoulder to the opposite under-arm in the evening décolletage. The deep V-shaped back is still the pronounced treatment for evening, but the bateau line promises to return in summer fashions.

On every side self-ties appear on the frock or coat. These ties seem to be just a little wider and more important than heretofore. The loops are fuller, and of course materials must be soft for the right effect. A corner of the square neck is a favorite place for the fabric tie and if this treatment is repeated at the side of the waistline so much the better. Then there are ties at the front neck and waistline, at the wrists, cascade treatments of trimmings are also seen a great deal, softening the dress with a graceful ripple from shoulder to hem, effecting jabots here and there, and other effective touches.

Lace appears on every possible occasion. Fashionable Dress Magazine enumerates its use in vestees, yokes, sleeve puffs, tiers and frills, particularly in cream or black. There are all-lace dinner dresses and elaborate afternoon dresses where lace is associated with filmy stuffs like chiffon, net, georgette and marquisette.

The white evening dress maintains its important position, lending itself to lavish beading. In the evening frock wing and draped treatments continue to break the sometimes very straight lines, and wing sleeves vary the design of dinner and afternoon gowns. The irregularity of hems appears to be irrepresible. The afternoon coat of crepe, canton and satin also indulges in wing sleeves.

An Ensemble That May Prove Spring Favorite

Yola d'Avril, the motion picture actress, who planned a wardrobe for the South with great care, is pictured in a charming ensemble. It is of beige georgette featuring tucks its entire length, relieved by a surprise collar caught at the waistline with a steel buckle and ending in sash effect at the hemline. The vestee is of plain beige georgette. The hat, of beige georgette, creates an ensemble note, while the very new shoes of alligator finish a smart costume. Miss d'Avril is seen in the film "Orchids and Ermine."

FLIGHT OF TIME HAS MADE CHANGES

In the Personnel of Rural Mail Carriers Out of Circleville.

Twenty-five years since the Rural Free Delivery was started out of Circleville Postoffice; of the original list of carriers only two are still on the routes, Messrs William B. Watts and George H. May.

Within that period Messrs. H. A. Brown and George Fissell have been retired on pension, having reached the age of 65 years. The following carriers have passed to the great beyond: Samuel Kindler, George Henderson and Frank Gearhart.

The carriers are assessed 3½ per cent monthly from their wages by the Postoffice Department for the fund from which the pensions are paid. There is not much inducement for young men to enter this service as they are compelled to remain therein until the retirement age, 65 years, before they can expect to receive a pension. Under the present ruling should a carrier die in service his widow receives what has been held back on his salary, with interest. The Rural Carriers' association is making an effort to have this rule rescinded so that the widows of carriers should receive their deceased husband's pension.

When the rural routes were established at this point the amount of mail carried was negligible as compared to the present time.

TEACHING

History By Means of Moving Pictures.

The methods of teaching children have taken wonderful strides since the days when our parents were pupils in the grade schools, in fact ever since the days when we "youngsters" were lined up and asked when did Columbus discover America? changes could be noted, if any of us ever had the "time" to think about it.

Teaching children their history lessons by means of moving pictures has been used in many of the city schools and endorsed by boards of education everywhere, and we of today who have neither time nor the inclination, to make a study of the history of our country, that has been made since our leaving school, will have an opportunity to learn some of it, and receive an evening's entertainment as well, by attending the showing of the film "America Under Fire" at the Grand Theatre, next Monday and Tuesday evenings under the auspices of the local voiture 40 et 8 branch of the American Legion, with Corporal Ingleson in person to explain in doughboy fashion the meaning of the pictures.

Corporal Ingleson, who was one of the official photographers of the United States during the time of the world war is permitted to show this film which is the property of the war department, because of the part he took in the war.

The Legion has arranged to have the seats reserved for these performances in order to avoid the confusion that was apparent at the last showing, when many persons were unable to see the show after purchasing tickets. There will be no confusion this time and there will also be about 1,200 additional feet of film with the picture and in many of the scenes our own Pickaway County boys can be recognized.

Reserved seat chart is open at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store.

Of Course!

Santa had left, among other things, an A-B-C slate, and Charles a five-year-old resident of Rural street, late in February, was learning to spell, having already mastered the A-B-C's. One evening mother was having her turn at helping him spell.

"Oh, mother, I'm tired of old e-a-t and d-o-g!"
"All right, sonny, here's a new one," said mother, "c-o-w—guess—it's well, what gives us our milk?"
"The milkman," promptly and seriously replied Charles.—Indianapolis News.

Civilization Fails to

Dim Indian's Vision

Muskogee, Okla. — Undimmed by civilization, the keen eyesight of the Indians, essential in early days to detect the presence of enemies or of wild game for food, still is retained for the peaceful pursuits of the present generation.

Dr. Charles Southard, secretary of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, after testing the eyes of school children in nineteen states, said that the 400 Indian students at Bacone college here possess, collectively, the best eyesight of any group he had examined.

"The Indians read distant charts with ease," he said, "while their white cousins are unable to make out the largest characters."

Doctor Southard cautioned the Indians, however, that unless they stopped reading while lying in bed this marvelous faculty would be endangered.

Plan Basis for Rotation Idea

Principle of Modern Cropping Developed in Late Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Out of the practical experience of farmers over a period of 3,000 years or more has finally developed the fundamental principle of modern crop rotation, says W. W. Weir, bureau of soils, United States Department of Agriculture. This principle is the growing of an intertilled crop, a small-grain crop, and a grass or leguminous crop in the order named, and in recurring succession on a given piece of land. Four stages of farming practice during these 30 centuries have resulted in the present system of cropping, and they are recounted by Mr. Weir in order that the importance of crop rotation may be fully appreciated today.

First Resting Stage.

When cereals became the chief source of food of the early peoples it was natural that these crops should be grown on the same fields year after year. It was noted, however, that such cropping resulted in land depletion, and that resting the land renewed its producing power. This knowledge gave rise to the practice of "resting" the land, or abandoning it, at intervals to the natural growth of rough and weedy herbage. The oldest record of such a practice according to Mr. Weir, is to be found in the Mosaic laws (about 1400 B. C.) commanding the people, "And six years thou shalt sow thy land, and gather in the fruits thereof; but the seventh thou shalt let it rest and lie still." Thus we have the first or "resting" stage of cropping.

About 29 B. C., the "resting" practice gave way to one in which "bare fallow" was practiced to control the weeds. In this second stage the rotation consisted of a winter grain like wheat, followed by a spring grain like barley, which in turn was followed by bare fallow.

The third stage was marked by the introduction of legumes or clovers into the cropping system. The Flemish farmers about 1600 A. D., abolished the bare fallow practice, and grew clover in rotation with hemp, turnips, and small grains. This was a big step in the improvement of husbandry because it permitted more live stock to be kept and renewed as well as rested the land.

Legumes in Rotation.

The fourth stage was the introduction of intertillage in the field. Although the art of hoeing in between rows of plants grown in the garden had been practiced by the early Romans, apparently nobody thought of carrying the practice to the fields until English farmers adopted it during the Eighteenth century to meet the problem of weeds.

The introduction of intertillage into the field gave rise to one of the greatest improvements in agriculture, and to the completion of the basic principle of crop rotation as it is known today.

Take Remedial Measures for Spiders in Spring

There have been some inquiries relative to red spiders which apparently have shown up here and there where apples are grown. These pests work on the leaves and turn them a rusty brown in color. They stop the vigor and the growth of the trees after a certain length of time.

According to C. S. Holland, the horticulture field man at Ohio State university, the insects lay their eggs on the bud scales of the past season's growth, and hatch out in the spring as tree growth is started. Frequently the color of the leaves will indicate an infested tree as far away as 50 yards.

Remedial measures should be applied in early spring when the spider eggs are hatching, and just when the tree is beginning to grow. A 2 per cent oil emulsion spray will prove effective, and this also is effective as a dormant spray against scale.

Agricultural Items

There is no limit to the demand for the best in farm products.

Sooner or later the sheriff will knock down the run-down farm.

The first commandment of farming: Thou shalt not let thy land get poor.

Rows of garden vegetables are better than rows of druggist's bottles on the shelf.

Time spent selecting and testing seed corn will pay many dollars per hour for the labor.

The farmer who puts to wise use what he has, finds it easier to get what he wants.

Plan now for liming sour land on which you expect to plant clover, alfalfa, barley, sweet clover, Canada field peas, or canning peas or beans.

Ninety-five per cent of the statements about probable future trends in agriculture published in the 1925 and 1926 outlook reports of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington were borne out by later developments.

RUTH BROWN SNYDER

Turned Upon Lover On Witness Stand.

Long Island City, N. Y., April 29.—(UP.)—Her low, controlled voice tinged with cold hatred, Ruth Brown Snyder went to the witness stand today and portrayed Henry Judd Gray as a man who had once been her master.

Mrs. Snyder described unemotionally the unhappy home given her by Albert Snyder, but indicated she might have continued to be the faithful wife had it not been for the influence of her lover.

It was Gray, she charged, who first suggested the slaying of Snyder; it was Gray who advocated the idea of increasing Snyder's insurance, and it was Gray who committed the murder.

are washed thoroughly and quickly in the MAYTAG during Spring Housecleaning

YOU will be surprised how easily and quickly the Maytag washes all of the heavy bulky things—with so little effort on your part. You will be surprised at their unusual cleanliness after a few minutes in the life-lasting, heat-retaining, self-cleaning, cast-aluminum tub. There is no better way to judge the Maytag's unusual washability than at housecleaning time.

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with built-in gasoline motor.

Phone

Use the Maytag in your own home without obligation or expense. Judge for yourself its unusual speed when big tubfuls of ordinary clothes are washed in 3 to 7 minutes. Judge for yourself its thoroughness when even collar and cuff edges are washed clean without hand-rubbing. Try the Maytag—if it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

PNEUMONIA

Caused the Death of Richard Phillips—Funeral Services at Hebron Church.

Richard Sylvester Phillips died at his home in Monroe township last Friday night after an illness of ten days of pneumonia.

He was the son of John and Leah Ferrell Phillips and was born in Rome county, West Virginia, on the 8th day of July, 1866.

He was united in marriage to Cora Cadle and to this union the following children survive: Opie, Everett, Otho, Ethel, Gladys and Silas. Besides his wife and children, he is survived by one brother, Silas Phillips, Dunbar, West Virginia, and one sister, Mrs. Fannie Taylor, Walton, West Virginia.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Hebron M. E. church conducted by Rev. W. W. Trout. Interment in the Hebron cemetery.

Public Servants

In 1855 civil service reform was debated and Daniel Webster expounded the following proposition: "The theory of our institution is plain; it is that government is an agency created for the good of the people and that every person in office is the agent and servant of the people. Offices are created not for the good of those who are to fill them, but for the public convenience."

A Gift for Miss Hildegard

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

IT WAS early summer when Hildegard Wood met her ideal man—and she, a successful school teacher, had formed her hasty opinion in three minutes. It happened on the train when she was homeward bound for the long summer vacation; and as he was her neighbor in the pullman, occupying the next chair to her own, it fell to his lot to pick up a huge armful of roses that some of her admiring pupils had flung at her when the train started.

"Thank you so much," Hildegard murmured as the stranger crouched down to rescue the last delightful pink bud from under his own chair.

The porter, hovering at her elbow, offered to put them in the refrigerator of the buffet car just behind. "They'll keep nice and cold, madam, and no trouble at all; thank you, ma'am." And the porter vanished with the roses.

"Looks like anything except a schoolma'am," pondered the young man who wore shell-rimmed spectacles, and had quantities of brown hair. It was the young man's ill luck to lose sight of Hildegard as she left the train, so that he never saw who it was that met her, but the next day he wisely sought the "red caps" at the station and made diligent inquiries.

"If you means a lady wid viletts," said one of the porters whom he questioned, "I sure toted her bags. I dunno her name, but she grabbed a lady at de gate and says, 'Deah M' Gunkow,' or somefin like dat."

Billy Remsen thanked the man joyfully, tipped him generously, and rushed off. Surely he knew Mrs. Gunkow! He hoped it was his dear Cousin Ruth Gunkow. If it wasn't, Ruth could probably introduce him to some of her Gunkow-in-laws! He called Ruth on the telephone later, and told her he had thought of calling, if she would be home that night.

"Billy Remsen!" exclaimed his cousin enthusiastically. "I thought you were in Buffalo—your man told me the other day—do come to dinner tonight, and spend the evening—I have an old school friend here, just arrived from up-state."

So happy Billy Remsen stopped at a florist's, and, laden with a huge box of flowers, he arrived five minutes before dinner.

"Hildegard, dear, may I introduce my cousin, Billy Remsen? Billy, this is Miss Wood, my old school friend!" Ruth, not twenty-five herself, danced off to meet her young husband who was entering.

"Well, Hildegard! I am glad to see you," he exclaimed, "and how are you, Billy?" he asked slapping the happy, spectacled youth on the back.

"How am I? Starved!" blurted Billy, and just then dinner was announced and Billy offered his arm to his cousin and Hildegard went to her place with Mr. Gunkow.

It was a merry meal, and although Hildegard and Billy confessed themselves thoroughly surprised at the meeting, and explained the coincidence to their host and hostess, Billy said nothing about his quizzing of the station porters that had resulted so fortunately.

It was a delightful evening for all of them, especially Hildegard and Billy Remsen, but it was when Billy was leaving that Jack Gunkow managed to whisper a word to him.

"Pretty girl, eh, Billy?"

"I'll say so!" was Billy's enthusiastic reply.

"Don't lose your heart, old man, you know she's engaged?"

"No!" exploded poor Billy who had quite lost his heart.

"Yes—just happened—she's pretty happy, eh?"

"Seems so," growled Billy, and therefore when he said farewell to Hildegard, he was in the lowest depths of gloom.

All that summer, Hildegard Wood waited, hoping that Billy Remsen would find out her home address and come and see her. He did not come, but one glorious August day there came a box of flowers for her, containing Billy's card. White roses and lilies-of-the-valley—such bride roses she had never seen, and she knew that in the bottom of her heart that she loved Billy Remsen.

Of course she must thank him, and yet she did not know his address—perhaps Ruth could tell her. So Ruth told her gladly, and Hildegard wrote a happy, cheerful note—or rather she wrote half a dozen notes to Billy before she had one that suited her, and in it she told him that she was so happy because she was engaged to teach at Blue Lake school for the coming year.

The next day, Hildegard, picking roses in their garden, was surprised by the sight of a gray clad young man sprinting down the garden path.

"It cannot be a messenger boy," thought Hildegard, and, of course, it wasn't anybody but Billy Remsen!

"I understand that you were engaged!" he breathed heavily.

Hildegard looked puzzled. "Only to teach school another year," she stammered.

"Resign!" shouted Mr. Remsen joyfully, "you're going to marry me and go to Egypt for a honeymoon!"

By the time Billy met Jack Gunkow, he had got over his chagrin, for he was the happiest man in the world, and as for Jack, he had forgotten long ago his silly joke.

OHIO HISTORY ASSOCIATION HELD MEETING

Officers and Directors Elected and Plans Made For Celebration in October.

The directors of the Ohio History Day association met in this city at the chamber of commerce rooms Saturday afternoon.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Howard Jones; vice president, John Carlisle; secretary, Miss Agnes Butch; treasurer, Mrs. G. G. Leist.

There was one vacancy on the board of directors and this was filled by the election of Miss Elizabeth Ruggles, of Pasadena, California, a former resident of Circleville, who has always been interested in the preservation of Logan Elm. Other members of the board are: Mrs. J. F. Schoedinger, Mrs. John F. Carlisle, C. B. Galbreath, Vernon Riegel, Columbus; C. C. Chappelle, J. W. Johnson, Colonel C. E. Groce, General George Florence, John Wilson, M. C. Warren, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Leist, of this city.

Thru Senator Chappelle, the legislature appropriated $400 for the use of the State Archaeological society in improving the water supply and other sanitary conditions about the grounds. The money will be available the first of July.

The directors formulated plans for a program for Ohio History day to be held the first Sunday in October at Logan Elm park.

This annual event brings thousands of visitors to Circleville and every citizen should do his part in making the event a success. The annual dues are one dollar, payable to either the secretary or treasurer.

Following the adjournment the directors repaired to the Boggs hotel where they took dinner.

Extremes in Stature

In the Royal College of Surgeons in London there is the skeleton of the "Irish giant," Charles Byrne, who died in 1783. His height was 7 feet 8.4 inches. The skeleton of the Sicilian dwarf, Caroline Crachami, is 18.8 inches. The average height of the European is estimated to be 5 feet 7.5 inches.

AMUSEMENTS

Thrills, laughs, spectacle, drama, these are the things that go to make "Slide, Kelly, Slide" one of the outstanding pictures of the year.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer play—biggest baseball story in the history of the screen, and now playing at the Met theater, is unique. In the first place, the director, Edward Sedgwick, filmed the World Series, took its crucial plays and wove them into a dramatic background for his story. Thousands of yelling fans in grandstands; the nation's two foremost teams at death grips—this is the beginning or postulate of the picture.

In this is woven an intimate story of American baseball; the story of a young "busher" who learns to pitch, makes the big team, becomes a star, gets the "swelled" head" thereby—and then learns the greatest lesson of life.

It is just life itself—told amid the surge and thunder of the great American game.

Haines is Great.

William Haines, who played the hero of "Brown of Harvard" was the logical man for Kelly. His whimsical humor and inimitable portrayal do much to make the picture what it is, and Sally O'Neil makes a very piquant heroine.

Harry Carey is seen in one of the most remarkable roles of the picture as the veteran catcher, preceptor and patron of the boy from the country team. It is a sympathetic role that calls for the most skillful acting; Carey makes it a living thing. Karl Dane as the lanky pitcher has a role that will be remembered almost as long as his "Slim" in "The Big Parade." Eileen Sedgwick and Dane do an inimitable piece of comedy.

Dorothy Sebastian, Paul Kelly, Warner Richmond, Guinn Williams, Junior Coghlan, all have roles they fill admirably. Among the professional ball players in the picture the best actors are Bob and "Irish" Meusel and Tony Lazzari, of the Yankees, enlisted as members of the cast. Edward Sedgwick, of "Tin Hats" fame, is the director.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

We never aim to talk much about the weather, for that's a pretty sure sign of being hard pressed for a way to stay sociable. But we can't keep from saying that with the sun sifting down real warm and the maple leaves busting out, and the air full of a scent of peach tree blossoms, why we're mighty glad to be here and have things just like they are.

Mrs. Amanda Bell had her dining room repaired last week and she lacked just the least little bit of having enough paper to finish the job. But she managed to make it come out so she could cover the place with a big picture she's got.

Grover Morgan has started to repaint his automobile so as to be in harmony with the spring season and he discussed with his wife all week what color look best. He leaned strong toward red, but she wanted it dark blue, so they compromised on light blue.

Enoch Budd stood on the postoffice corner a good while last Saturday waiting for some man that was to meet him there at noon and settle a $3 debt. But the man didn't come, and after Enoch had waited till 4 o'clock he gave it up and said he did not look for him any of the time.

Luther Newton started to spade up a big flower bed for Sidney Moon yesterday. But he didn't get much done on account of Sidney's bull dog came up and started to growl so that Luther was afraid to go ahead until Sidney came back. And the reason was that the dog had a lot of meat bones buried there and was suspicious of Luther.

Miss Gloria Blossom is down from the city to visit her aunt, Mrs. Hettie Thomas, for a week or two. And she's been making some long distance telephone calls that Mrs. Thomas is worried they'll be charged against her phone.

A remark was made the other day that Joe Dadds must have awful good nerves, for he never seems to let on or be shocked by any kind of a sudden noise. And somebody said that the reason is he's got so used to hearing the old tires on his flivver blow out, that nothing surprises him any more.

Tom Riley got tolerably well soaked in the shower of rain which we had yesterday. While he was up on his roof fixing a place behind the chimney, somebody came along and borrowed his ladder not knowing where Tom was. And when the rain came up he couldn't get down.

Some of the members of the Woman's Discussion club were talking the other day about how self-control can be cultivated. And Mrs. Ed Thomas said she didn't know of anything that tries a person more than to go into a picture show in the middle of a picture and keep from looking at it until it starts at the first again.

Milton Hall suffered a painful shock a day or two ago when several heavy things fell out of a clothes closet on his head. It seems like in preparing for some company, Mrs. Hall had filled the closet too full of things she didn't want seen and when Milton opened the door in an unsuspecting way, why the contents spilled out on his head.

Felix Cobb drove up to the city last Tuesday in his machine and while he was parked up there, a policeman marked with chalk on one of his tires. Felix was puzzled to know what that meant, and when he inquired of somebody, they said to wait until the policeman came along again and ask him. Which Felix did, and it cost him $5 for being parked too long in one place.

Andrew Allen is bothered a good deal at this writing on account of they's a big mark on his calendar that he made last month to remind him to do something today, and he can't remember what it was.

Incites "War" to Kill

Pests Among Insects

Seattle, Wash.—Important to humans, although almost unnoticed by the general public, a war of extinction between mortal enemies in the insect world has been going on in the Pacific Northwest for four years and the end is not yet in sight.

The warfare was instigated by Prof. Trevor Kincaid, professor of biology at the University of Washington, in an attempt to control a serious infestation known as the earwig, a species of harmful insect, by importing parasitical tachinade flies from Europe.

The tachinade flies are natural enemies of the earwig. Both came from Europe originally.

When poison bait and other weapons failed to check the encroachments of the earwig, the flies were pitted against them, first in a laboratory arena, where the earwig was victorious, and then in the fields at large. An omnivorous eater of all growing things, the earwig also ensconces itself snugly in clothing or shipments of goods and does considerable damage.

If you want to make it easy for your competitors, worry about them.

Claims China Invents

"Noiseless" Cannon

Shanghai.—Chinese, credited with invention of gunpowder, have now produced "noiseless cannon," say newspapers reporting tests of a gun designed by Yang Yi-cheng.

The silencer is not an attachment but part of the original mechanism and the principles are kept secret. Although the gun is effective at a distance of 2.3 miles, it is claimed, the explosion cannot be heard more than 400 feet away.

"Makee shoot—no makee bang," is how the achievement was captioned by a foreign-language newspaper, which said Chang Tso-lin, northern generalissimo, had purchased the invention for the Peking government, giving the inventor a bonus of $10,000.

Machines That Will

Start When Looked At

New York.—Mechanical window displays that automatically start to operate when a person stops to watch, lights of a city that may be turned on by a single drop of rain, or costly jewels, loosely laid around and apparently unprotected, but arranged so that a bell loudly rings when a prospective crook's hand draws near, are now a possibility as the result of a new electric relay. The device was invented by D. D. Knowles, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

It is known as the Knowles grid-glow relay, and resembles a radio set vacuum tube in appearance. When properly connected, a billionth of a watt of electrical energy, about one-fortieth the amount of energy exerted by a fly climbing an inch in a second, is sufficient to control the flow of a current a hundred million times as great, and this current, in opening or closing another relay, can control currents as high as 25 amperes, as much as used to operate large motors.

THE PURITANSNOT SO BLEAK

"Our Puritan fathers brewed beer, casked wine, and distilled brandy. Their sexual life was abundant, productive. Else some of us authentic New Englanders would not be here to tell the tale; and Longfellow would not have been the descendant of Priscilla Mullins, whom in point of fact Miles Standish did not woo, because he already had a second wife—a prohibitive fact in those times as in these.

John Macy, the author offers the above to prove his contention that the Puritans were not really so bleak and blue-nosed as popularly believed.

"It is the fashion in our time to designate as 'puritanic' any encroachment on our individual liberties," Mr. Macy writes in the May Harpers Magazine.

"Puritanism has been lately confounded with Prohibitionism and Fundamentalism. I find that most people know little about the Puritans, who they were, what they thought, what they did.

"The Puritans, the early New Englanders, were undoubtedly severe in their punishment of departures from matrimonial regularity. The Hester Prynnes was marked with the scarlet letter, and Hawthorne's romance is to a certain extent founded on fact; historians tell us that the penalty is to be found in the laws of Boston and Plymouth in the middle of the seventeenth century. But severity of punishment prevailed in all countries, and those who inflicted the punishment were whoever happened to be in authority. No sect, party, government in England or anywhere else in Europe was guiltless of the most ferocious acts of punitive violence. People were killed, tortured, maimed, branded with hot irons, more terrible physically if not emotional than the imprint of an embroidered letter.

"And are we much more liberal and forgiving? The ostracism of Hester Prynne, with its visible symbol, is not more severe and merciless than that visited upon some errant women of our time. The fate of Hester Prynne is no more tragic than that of Anna Karenina. And if both women be the fictitious creations of tragic romantic artists, romantic art in the work of men strongly possessed by ethical considerations does represent the social temper of the period and the race."

CUTS TELEGRAPH LINE TO SAVE LIFETrapper Loses Right to Hunt by Act.

Ottawa, Ont.—Old Benny, who has roamed the northern marshes of British Columbia for fifty years, setting his traps and tending his nets, will trap no more.

The remote and inaccessible defiles of the northern Rockies will never again echo and re-echo with the crack of his rifle.

Old Benny will not hunt or trap again because the Indian department will not permit him to tramp the forests alone. When the piercing north wind drove even the wild animals to shelter Old Benny, stricken with a sudden illness, came face to face with death. Without strength to reach his log cabin and with no human beings within a hundred miles, he struggled on until he came to a narrow ravine—Telegraph creek—and there he collapsed.

However, Old Benny was not yet through. Lying in the snow, he saw a thin strand of copper wire—the telegraph line maintained by the Canadian government between British Columbia and the Yukon. Summoning his remaining strength, he cut the wire in the hope that the federal government "trouble shooters" would find the break and come to him before he perished.

Last Christmas day the trouble party set out with a dog team. Christmas night they found the break and Old Benny. He was badly frozen and semiconscious, but was carried back to civilization and now has fully recovered.

The Indian department has ruled that Old Benny's trapping days are over. He must live on a reserve within reach of medical attention and will be maintained out of government funds.

OHIO LIVE-STOCK DAYS

Experimental Stock to Be Shown
At Wooster, Fostoria, Bellefontaine and Circleville.

Friday, May 27, is Livestock Day at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster. Six carloads of cattle, sheep and hogs now on test at the Station will be arranged in groups so that the results of the experiments may be easily comprehended and the groups placed in observation pens for inspection. Later they will be exhibited at Fostoria, Bellefontaine and Circleville.

Out-of-state speakers in addition to the local experimenters will have a worth while message to Ohio farmers, and feeders who have learned to look forward to Livestock Day at the Station as a big annual event.

Feeders no longer depend solely upon bulletins and other printed accounts of tests, but take advantage of these livestock days when they may see the animals themselves at a time when they show the effects of feeding and other factors to the best advantage.

The Livestock Specialists of the Ohio State University have been active in arranging to have the experimental animals exhibited at three other points in Ohio after the day at Wooster on May 27. The six carloads of stock will be detrained and shown at Fostoria, Tuesday, May 31; at Bellefontaine, Thursday, June 2, and at Circleville, Saturday, June 4.

This trip is similar to one made two years ago when great interest was manifested at the different stops by the several thousand people in attendance.

Danger to Gems

As pearls consist of carbonate of lime, vinegar and other acids will eat away the polished surface in a short time. Hot water is fatal to an opal, destroying its fire and sometimes causing it to crack. Soap is a deadly enemy of the turquoise. If a turquoise ring is kept on the hand while washing, in a short time the blue stones will turn to a dingy green.

SALMON'S WEALTH GREATER THAN GOLD

Fish Lead in Exports From Far Alaska.

Ketchikan, Alaska.—From the island-dotted waterways of Alaska's thousands of miles of coast has come a wealth more precious, more vital even than gold. It is the wealth of the sea itself—of the teeming millions of salmon that have been taken from the bosom of the North Pacific and placed on the world's table.

Since Alaska was purchased from Russia, sixty years ago, salmon has led the list of exports from the territory, with $810,750,038 to its credit—a figure which multiplies nearly eighty-five fold the price which Uncle Sam paid for the territory.

The romance of the Klondike has not dimmed in the hearts of the Alaskans, nor has the gold fever of the late nineties, which sent thousands into the territory, been forgotten anywhere in the United States. But, despite the mineral wealth of the territory, the salmon exports lead those of gold by $250,000,000.

Best Source of Revenue.
With agricultural production practically negligible, it is not for the Alaskan to gain his wealth—or even to earn his daily bread—through tilling the soil or trekking about on a sort of hill and valley hegira seeking "pay dirt." Rather it is his mission to don sou'wester and slicker, boots and gloves; to board his boat and to steer for the fishing banks.

Thousands of men, many of them native Alaskan Indians, are engaged in salmon fishing or canning and subsidiary industries. The number during 1925 was estimated at more than 25,000. The investment at that time was set at $55,400,000.

Salmon fishing is permissible in several ways. Legislation, of course, prevents taking salmon from the mouths of streams when they migrate each season to spawn, and recently, under the regulations perfected by the bureau of fisheries, closed seasons have been in effect at the height of the summer season in order to allow more salmon to get to the spawning grounds. This measure is being taken to assure perpetuity of the supply.

The most common form of fishing is the traps. These are built by various individuals and corporations at points approved by the government. Through a series of wire meshes migrating salmon are caught by the thousand. Once and twice a day the traps are brailled (depending upon how the fish are "running") and the salmon taken to canneries in the vicinity. Another common form is trolling. Small boats manned by one or two men travel inside waters, allowing hooks and lines to drag behind. These are baited with "spoons" designed to represent herring.

Traps Largely Used.
The operations of the seine boats largely have been displaced by the traps. Natives, however, in the southeastern section still operate their boats. Larger crews are required for these boats, which throw out huge nets, the edges of which have cork floaters. When the ends are joined the net is hauled in and—if good fortune has played its hand—hundreds or even thousands of salmon are taken in one haul.

Ketchikan offers an interesting sight for the tourist. The canneries, some of them located near the steamer landings, operate night and day during the season. Most of the work is done by machinery.

Salmon fishing, however, is not confined to the southeastern part of the territory, but is more or less common all along the coast. Due to the nature of the country, however, southeastern Alaska is more adaptable both to the salmon and the agencies which seek to can them.

In addition to canning, mild curing and the packing of fresh fish offer employment to hundreds the year around. During 1925 the value of these products was set at $1,751,369.

The total number of salmon taken from Alaskan waters during 1925 was 79,477,600. In 1922 the number was only 72,370,400.

Military Barracks Now Used as Hospitals

Stockholm, Sweden.—Transformation of Sweden's empty military barracks into modern hospitals, historical museums and insane asylums has been recommended by a committee appointed by the government.

The problem of what to do with the buildings arose from the army reduction decided on two years ago.

In Stockholm the collections of the state historical museum have long overcrowded the space hitherto available and the government antiquarian Dr. Sigvard Curman, has found that the heavy artillery barracks can be reconstructed into display rooms.

In the provincial garrison towns use of the empty barracks as sanitariums or as regular hospitals is proposed and in Sala, Orebro, Venersborg and Jonkoping the committee favors the transformation of the barracks into institutions for the care of idiots, imbeciles and the insane.

Buy A Car With This Extra Money

FINANCIAL authorities announce that we now have a 70-cent dollar. In 1920 it was a 40-cent dollar worth—in purchasing power, not much more than half the dollar of today. These computations are based on one dollar's worth of general commodities at pre-war prices. The automobile dollar has increased in value at an even faster pace. It will actually buy more today than the pre-war automobile dollar.

You are making more money now, even the your income is no greater. Add to your life the advantages of up-to-date automotive transportation—exemplified at its best by the 1927 Ford line. Come in and talk it over.

SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unredacted form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cady and daughters, Elizabeth and Virginia, spent Sunday in Columbus with relatives. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Cady's mother, Mrs. Melissa Gulick, and her granddaughter, Gertrude Bon, of South Amboy, New Jersey.

200 Rattlesnakes Killed by Charge of Dynamite

Hot Springs, S. D.—Guy Keyes, a forest ranger whose station is near Key-stone, in Harney national forest, forty miles from Hot Springs, saw a rattlesnake glide along ahead of him as he rode over his range, and disappear in a crevice of boulders a short distance away.

He followed in order to kill the reptile. On coming close to the rock he saw a great mass of slowly writhing snakes in a recess in the boulders.

Realizing that he could not cope with such numbers, Keyes rode to his station and secured dynamite, which he used to blow up both rocks and snakes. As accurate a count as could be made afterward showed that there were about 200 snakes killed.

SPEEDING AUTO BADLY INJURES LESLIE KARR

At Laurelville Saturday Night, Impact Throws Him Against Wind Shield.

Leslie Karr, the 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Karr, near Stringtown was run down by an auto last Saturday evening near the old cider mill at Laurelville and was seriously injured. The fender of the car struck Karr, who was walking along the road and he was tossed up and landed on the hood of the car, his head striking the windshield with such force that his skull was fractured.

The driver of the car, Walter Hunter, of Whisler, was accompanied by a Miss Myrtle Lutz, of near Laurelville. The pair drove the car some distance following the accident and abandoned the machine on the road. They were so badly frightened they did not know what to do, but finally went to Laurelville and gave themselves up to the authorities. They were released and were allowed to go to their homes.

The injured man was removed to Grant hospital, Columbus. Reports from his bedside Monday morning are that he failed to recover consciousness.

HONOR PROFESSOR ARMSTRONG Ohio Wesleyan university officials at Delaware have announced establishment of "The Gordon N. Armstrong Professorship of Mathematics" in memory of Professor Gordon N. Armstrong, who was head of the mathematics department from 1910 until his death in 1926.

Professor Armstrong's mother and sister, Mrs. Alice L. Armstrong and Miss Alice D. Armstrong of Laurelville have completed arrangements with the university which will make the professorship possible.

Details of the plan have not been made public, but it is known that a large amount has been turned over to school authorities, said to be about $75,000. Armstrong graduated in 1897, took his M. A. at Harvard and his doctor's degree at Munich. He joined the Ohio Wesleyan faculty in 1905 and became head of his department five years later.

BOY SCOUTS HONOR MONTE BEAVER SUNDAY

Former Circleville Boy Was Given Unusual Recognition in Columbus Sunday.

At a recognition service for Troop No. 60, Boy Scouts, a meeting held in First Methodist Episcopal church, Bryden road and Eighteenth street, Columbus, Sunday evening, an honor patrol was formed, honoring Monte Beaver, former scoutmaster who was present at the meeting.

Twenty-one troops of the east end were invited to participate in the service and scout headquarters were represented by Scout Commissioner Edwin Burdell, who made an address on "Scouting and Its Relation to Church and School." Dr. T. T. Crawford, the pastor of the church spoke on the subject, "An Interview with Sir Robert Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the World."

The Godman Guild Bugle corps and the Junior choir of First church furnished the music for the occasion. Andrew D. Rogers is scoutmaster of Troop No. 60 and Roy Boyce is assistant scoutmaster.

Regulation Birthday

February 20 is a red letter day in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kosinski, Toledo, Ohio. Four boys have been born to them on that date, all two years apart—Edward in 1908, Al-den, 1910; Clarence, 1912, and Stanley, 1914. And all four were born exactly at noon. Three of their remaining five children also were born in February.

Railroad for Albania

Albania, which has previously enjoyed the doubtful distinction of being the only country in Europe without a railroad, is building one which will place her in line with other countries in this respect. Her first railroad is but twenty-three miles long.

FRIEDMANS ESTABLISH NEW STORE

An important business deal was completed Thursday afternoon, that means a fine new store for Chillicothe in the very near future.

The store room at 18 East Main street, formerly occupied by the Sales Store company and managed by M. Skor, who died recently, was leased by John P. Phillips Sr., to the Friedman concern, now conducting large stores in Circleville and Lancaster with a New York office and ladies' ready-to-wear goods. The lease runs for three years with a five year option.

The work of remodeling the store, will it is announced, be started about August first next and the store will be opened for business about September first. A high class line of ladies' ready-to-wear goods will be handled. The store will be managed by Max Friedman, son of the widow of Ben Friedman, a former Chillicothe resident.

This proposed opening of a Friedman store here has something of historic interest as the Friedmans were originally a Chillicothe family, the new main store on South Paint street being a well known store here some thirty years ago and Mrs. Friedman being in charge of one of its departments.

Max Friedman, who will manage the new Chillicothe store, is, of course a brother of our own "Ted Lewis." Scioto Gazette.

Offer Students Prizes for Best Safety Essays

New York.—In 1926, there were 5,921 highway grade-crossing accidents in which 2,492 persons were killed and 6,991 injured. In 1925, there were 5,479 accidents in which 2,293 persons were killed and 6,555 injured.

In an effort to interest the public and especially the younger generation, in preventing grade-crossing accidents, the railroads, through the American Railway association, have announced an offer of three prizes in a nationwide contest to be awarded to school and college students. The prizes are to be $250 each, one for the best essay prepared by a grammar school student, one for the best, by a high school student, and one for the best, by a college student. The subject in all cases is to be "Cross Crossings Cautiously," and each essay must be not more than 250 words in length. Detailed plans for the contest have been arranged by J. C. Caviston, secretary of the safety section of the association, with headquarters at 20 Vesey street, New York. The contest closes on June 1.

All Are Finger-Printed

In Argentina there is a national finger-printing law, and as a result the 10,000,000 or more inhabitants are all recorded by this system. It is this regulation which makes Argentina the one country in the world, it is said, where one may not lose his or her identity.
